THURSDAY, March 12, 1767. THE NUMB. 44.

VIRGINIA GAZETTE.

PUBLISHED by AUTHORITY.

Open to ALL PARTIES, but Influenced by NONE.

To Mr. RIND,

Thou dear uninfluenced Piece of Benignity.

I HEREWITH send thee, for the Exercise of thy wonted Goodness to all, a Piece which thus fell into my Hands. You must know, that I, Crambe, in one of these serene Moonshiny Nights, having rambled abroad to Star gaze in the Heavens for Rhymes or Clinks; whilst I was filling my Budget with all the Gingles that I could collect, by Chance cast my Eye on a Packet containing the following Poem

To the EAST,
A Replication from the Goddess Dulness,
To
T. B. A Bard, of modern Note,
In the EAST.

WELCOME my Son, to this compos'd abode;
Where none approach, but those dispos'd to nod. *
My Par'mour Bathos, in Love's intercourse
Promised a rhyming Genius much like yours;
Whilst ravish'd Fancy, aiding Nature's Work,
Conceiv'd a one eyed Bard cropped Burke †
With such a Papa, such a Mama blest,
And all the wond'rous Pow'r of Rhyme possess'd;
Who can in Rival-ship, Wit's Sceptre claim;
Say Paean's sacred Priest, poetic C——— ? ‡
Not one besmeared all o'er with sable Wave,
Dares take the Pen, 'gainst such a Peer-ess Brave
As my UNO'CULUS; in these soaring Climes,
The very Gradus of Hesperian Rhymes;
A Poet so compleatly cas'd with Lead,
Must soar like Pope, down with wond'rous Speed;
While ev'ry Thought, tho' ev'ry Subject Great,
So centri-petal, though in full Assent;
Twill sink sublimely to its Bathian Sire;
Specific Weight forbidding to aspire.
No TOBY ‖ no; the Fruit of so much Lust,
Must shine a Prodigy in any Post.
Unrival'd thou, a Prince within these Climes,
Shall sway Wit's Sceptre, bid in Western Rhymes,
And further, to preserve thee near my Throne,
Behold, my Son, this well wrought laureat Crown!
A Wreath of Poppies, from Beotia's Soil,
Whose Virtues lull the Brain's laborious Toil,
With Art contriv'd; thy matchless Front 'twill grace,
Fix'd by a Fillet of Hibernian Brass.
Then blink § Bathos; in Hesperia's Land
No doughty Scribbler of the gingling Band,
Nor Pæan's Priest much fam'd for thy Sublime,
With thee shall strut, with thee shall taste a Rhyme.

Notes by Crambe.

* The Goddess here is said, accepts her Son and Bard in the true Poetic; from the resting Sounds of compos'd and dispos'd, seem to be well understood as the sleepy State of dull Composers. However, this may be referr'd for Decision to some Apollonian Priest. The Poem seems pregnant with such poetic Instances.

† Most People imagine the Bard of Hibernian Birth: It may not be unlikely then, that the Goddess and her Paramour  have been in some Struggle in that Clime: However, be that as it will, we see Mr. Burke is spell'd scourged since Mama confesses he is the Offspring of her and Goddess, by old Central Bathos, in all sinking Sublimity a God much adored.

‡ This Genius for Poetry has greatly exhibited in that Way some Years ago; to be found in the Roylean Library, in Pompiers fold at 2/6, for the Benefit of the Author: From whence I presume the Eastern Bard took the Thought of dubbing him Paean's Priest. With great Propriety then, has the Goddess Dulness constituted him a Judge in the Rival-ship of Wit in Western Climes.

‖ Notwithstanding the Public has seen some Pieces subscribed T. B. 'till I read this Poem, I knew not that the Bard had Toby for his first Appellation; and I believe others were no better acquainted with it than myself. Therefore I have endeavour'd to peruse a Manuscript Edition of the Rhapsodies of the East; in which, I find, a Kind of Duett between one T—— r and Mr. Toby. This Manuscript I am perswaded may be seen in the Museum of the Goddess. It will not be improper here to observe, that it seems to be in pure Indulgence to the Bard's great Desire, that his Mama has now enthron'd him Prince of Western Rhymes; and invested him with the Sceptre of Wit: From whence it may be well presumed that it is with great Propriety that she makes him her Laureat also.

§ The Goddess, struck with the Remembrance of her Son Paean's Intercourse, on the Sight of her Son (this very Image of his Dady in every Instance except in the Circumstance of being a single Preeter) gives him here the Name of Papa, with the familiar Epithet of Distinction, frequent with some Mamas when they chuck their little Boys under their Chin.

See H—tt, T——r, ‡ and Pingallan Chellowe,
In Rhyming Cogest dubb'd the pretty Fellow:
E'en Cat calls Creek the charming Eastern Muse;
Soft tuneful Utt'rance of a limped Goose:
Whilst Buckskin Manners and the suit, thy praise
Contests, and yield to thee the Rhyming Bays.
Be this thy Pow'r: Each scribbling Bard shall see
Thou must applaud the me if they fancy me.
Thy Imprimatur, shall the Incense pay,
That on my clouded Altars ever blaze,
Each magic Quaint in Adoration used,
Without thy Stamp by me shall be refused.
Just Standard thou of Dulness through my Reign;
The Papal Porter of my foggy Fane. †
With such an Office blest; such a Post,
What Rhymer would not be in Transport lost?
What more my Son could brazen Cibber boast?
Long had I long'd for my much lov'd Repose,
Such as from strongest Poppies only flows:
But, O compell'd! I wish'd some other Shore,
For Dulness sleeps not where she cannot snore. §
A Dose of dreaming Prose in June I tried,
But could not close my Eyes unless I'd died;
A second Potion ta'en about September
To restless Stretching, but dispos'd each Member, **
A Snore's conveyed by th' Up and DOWN Sublime
In sounding Nonsense, counted into Rhyme;
Where none the stated Laws of Verse transgress;
But stupid Thoughts, their echo'ing Lines express.
As thus with restless Watchings much oppress'd
I stretching lay; behold fro' th' Lab'ring EAST!
A Rhyming Noise like distant Thunder roar'd;
And then my Son your happy Mother snor'd:
She snor'd aloud; ye Gods! What Comfort flows,
From strong Narcotic Lines, that thus dispose
The yawning Soul to Rest, and tune the Nose!
Say scourging Legate of the inspiring God, ††
Who cradles like my Toby to a Nod?
What Wit like his, can clink its own Applause,
Nor crampt by one, of all the Stag'rite's Laws?
E'en Asses, see their homag'd Tribute pay,
In sleepy Concert, and forget to bray.
And should he send his mighty Fiats forth,
To Duncify a Bard, of humble Worth;
Or one that dares in weighty Prose t'engage,
With pertage Wit, or with Petty Rage.
What Art can antidote the certain Snore,
The World must all be ravish'd in an Hour.
As when a Gape by some unlucky one
Begun, shall set a whole Companies to yawn;
So Toby, Opiate of Beotian Climes
Diffuses Stupor as he counts his Rhymes; ¶
A Dunce, A Dunce, A Dunce; ye Gods! the Sound
Rocks my old Paramour quite under Ground!
E'en thou, Apollo's, or my Toby's Priest,
Wouldst feel th' Effect and sink to pleasing Rest.

Again, my Son I must commend your Plan,
To pick me Stanzas in what Modes you can:
But still remember how you act with S——;
Be sure to keep with him like Glove in Hand;
For C——— thy favour'd, thy admiring Judge.
Once rais'd his Rancour; and with mutual Grudge,
They wrote and wrangled with amicable Fether,
By Turns t'unhorse and jockey one another;
Then now for [illegible] Spite
(Keep secret this) in amicable Spite.
B——— had a Vote, that stance in Infancy Senate,
Where C———applies my TEMPLE's Cups of Incense
From thence auth Incense may (Unoc'lus) rise
To fog this Western World, and cool its Skies:
The Praise tho' his! Your Rhymes shall ODE my Reign;
And Chiefs with Chiefs, my Kingdom shall maintain,
Whilst C——— and Burke exalt, my growing Fame.
New Incense forming, in thick swagging Clouds;
Roll as they rise true Emblems of thy Odes;
Where Thought, or Language boldly mounts the Skies,
Whilst th' other humbly in its Embrio lies:
Thus each in UP and DOWN, alternate soars,
To keep my Dome in loud perpetual Snores.
Our dear Beotian Dunces then shall fly;
And with the Dunces of Batavia vie,
By every central Law of Gravity.
Such Things my Scholiasts with unwearied Pains
Shall bring to pass within these Western Plains.
Those other Chiefs, your Fears have wish'd my own,
Direct you further in your Plan laid down:
All C^^ge V^^^s 'tis very clear,
(That meet to do and undo every Year) ‡
Might greatly interrupt your fav'rite Mode,
Of gaining Votaries to my Abode;
And such, of equal Consequence with B———,
Must well be tick'led to obtain our End.
For should these shine, with gen'rous ruling Pride
And fearless flame, our wat'ry Ambition's Tide;
Where, Where alas! will Dulness' Reign be found?
My growing Temple level'd with the Ground,
And in some Sable-wave my Laureat drown'd.
Sometimes e'en Cradles furnish ample Subsistence,
As Nurseries subdue most modern Dames,
And tender Hubbies yield to curtain Lectures;
Such Charms have beat a knotty stubborn Oak, **
To plians Sounds, whose Thunder should have broke.
Once more (to nick all Efforts in their Bud,)
Obstruct each Virtue in its View of Good;
My Servant Envy shall attend your Sail, †
And for your Maw malev'lent cull the Ball:
Each Virtue, cook'd by her shall Relish give
To all the ranc'rous Food on which WE live;
Distress and Indigence shall quickly die,
If WE but damn the Hand of Charity. ¶
And if to borrow for a Thought or Rhyme
My Son's compell'd to search Britannia's Clime;
To steal what others write, is no Expence
To Sense or Wit, but tutor'd Impudence;
And when in that you fail, my happy Care,
Search round; within this Temple's Atmosphere

A perfect

‡ I, Crambe, have been some Time puzzled to fill up this Name, not remembering the Public as yet diverted with any Trumpeter in Commendation of the Bard, with such initial and final Letters. But having Recourse to the before-mention'd Rhapsodies of the East, I do find it was an Edition publish'd by one of the Merchant Taylors Company of Ginglers.

* A Seat of that Name, figuratively describing a Poet, some Years ago fond of dirging in the Stile of Old Fingal.

† Mr. R H the Hypercritic, must here excuse Crambe, for transcribing a note of his on this Passage; "The Goddess here imitates the Example of mighty Empires in the Investiture of her Son and Favourite; with all the extensive Power of the several Offices in her Temple. 1st he is created Laureat, 2dly made Master of the Ceremonies to her Court, 3dly Chaplain or Taster to the Incense offer'd on her Altars, 4th Stamp Master of the Utensils for Adoration, then Keeper of the Scales that test the several Addresses paid to her; and lastly Porter-General to the Gate of her Temple. So extensive is the Power of this Bard in the Region of Dulness."

§ The Goddess, here may perhaps have deserved some Criticism, in saying there is no sleeping without snoring; but as extreme Dulness may possibly threw some plodding Brains into such an unhappy Situation, I must leave the Business of criticising on this Passage to those who may have experienced such a State.

 It is to be observed the Goddess here sails upon a Method of rocking herself to sleep; but why she should take these Doses of dreaming Prose in June and September, to cure her Watchfulness, I am not at a little Loss to see. However perhaps by examining some Apothecary's Files we may discover that a Recipe or two of this Sort has been prescribed in those Months; which she has kindly told us, can have no good Effect on real Dulness.

§§ The Goddess makes us happy here, in communicating that particular Kind of poetic Sublimity, that can set the World to snoring in the most stupid State of Dulness: That pretty Up and Down sleepy Way, between Thought and Expression, that generally falls into a Snore as soon as it is read.

‖ Some modern Observers of Phænomenons, have pretended that every Thing extraordinary generally comes from the East; but although I cannot indulge them in their full Latitude, I must observe that in the Year 1766, much Noise was heard from thence. It began indeed in 1765. Every Week produced something of it in our public Papers, either in Prose, Rhyme or Prophesy.

†† Vide T. B.'s Usurpation of Wit's Sceptre January 22, as well as the Eastern Bard's Address to the Goddess Dulness; where the self same Poet C——s described as a Scourger, and addressed as Paean's Priest, and Apollo's Legate.

¶ Y—e—w all struck by Jove. R. H.

§ Vide the Eastern Bard's Address to the Goddess Dulness; where his great Concern for his dear Mama, is extensively plann'd out, for her constant Preservation in Hesperia.

‖ I think I can remember a Pamphlet of Unhorsing; but am something puzzled to explain the Jockey-ship here alluded to; unless we should venture to refer it to the History of turning out a certain Professor.

‡ From the Referrence in this Text from the foregoing Note, down to this, seems an Allusion too deep for me to unfold; perhaps the History of past Times may explain it to others.

 Here seems to be an Allusion also in the Text, to the same Proceedings of the same past Times just referr'd to; to which I beg Leave to give another small Referrence; and shall barely hint at the Story of the School Master who boasted of governing his whole Parish, and began from governing each Scholar, to governing its Mama, and from thence to governing its Papa; who certainly makes one in governing other Things, as fast as it makes a V——e.

† The Goddess here deserves the Gratitude of every Reader, in pointing out that Envy is the chief Servant of Dulness, for Wisdom must be fond of Morality founded on real Humanity.

¶ R. H. must again excuse me for a Note of his on this Passage; if as the great Solomon tells us,  Every good Thing will be the Portion of Wisdom, " certainly it cannot be irrational to conclude, that every evil Thing, will find Admittance to Wisdom's great Contrary, Stupidity and Dulness; and as the Want of Charity is a certain Evil; I hope then from the Experience that the World has had in the Relish that Envy gives to what she dresses up; it can be nothing out of Taste to appoint her a Culinarist to the Laureat, as well as Harbinger or Purveyor for his Entertainments. And as we some Times see (though I hope but seldom) Charity sent headlong to the Grave, with all the Curses due to Infamy and Scandalous Debauchery; either from the wild Extravagance of enthusiastic Patriotism, or out of mere Ignorance in Morality, and of Course Christianity, which certainly is foreign every Degree of tender Humanity, as well as its own divine Mysteries; It cannot be much amiss for Dulness to inform the Laureat of the Power she must have over Distress and Indigence, whenever they shall think proper to damn the lenient Hand of Charity". R. H.

A Perf[illegible] Henly[illegible] lies; though out of Breath
He'll teach you Distinct[illegible] between his Teeth: †
My Fingers confel him, but his Voice you know;
Columniator he forme Years ago.

Now Burke affect; your Laureat Task assume,
To shine in Dulness for an Age to come:
On ev'ry Subject, let your Measures fly;
And live in Distichs, and in Distichs die.
Of Dogs † observe each accidental Groan,
And Dervise like imply each sudden Yawn.
Sing ev'ry Thought that Isabel inspires,
As each will count it's Rhyme, Love's lustful Fires;
And when she opens all her Fosom Charms,
Your gingling Muse, can clasp her in your Arms;
Instruct you well, in all her beaming Art
And with tumultuous Flames quite fill your Heart.
Or if a Rushing Match inspires your Lay,
Then buttoning Polly's B——. (scarce made of Clay,)
Must terely meet you with its first Delight;
But pray remember to clink in with Night;
For in the Day, by Jove a Woman's Rage,
'A Task too great for Men or Gods t'engage;
And should she in your Trance thee long detain,
Her Raptures must be chill your Rhyming Vein.
Should Satyr ever pierce thee with its Pen,
An Epigram will close the Wound again;
If to your Breast, your Fillet you apply;
The Bridge of Irish Hibernian Currency
The Satyr must conceal them down at once,
Each Line he writes, and damn'd to hide him DUNCE.

* Ha! My old Friend of Newport Market, whose formerly [illegible] were Impedences! How a Goddess informed us that [illegible] a Gamester in Hesperia?

† Hudibras tells us, that Rhymes, the Rudder of Verse, are sometimes only thrown in for the Sake of one another, without any Regard to add the Sense; but I will believe the Goddess too well [illegible] with thinking, to have no other Design in this Word [illegible]. It seems descriptive of some Mode of Delivery in this Gamester of Henly, whoever he be; perhaps Mr. Columniator may [illegible] us when he speaks.

† From this Reference, to the End of the Poem: If every the Reader shall be so happy to get a Sight of the before-mention'd Rhapsody of the Ears, he will understand the whole of it; as every Line refers particularly to some of the Lord's Performances; either in the Address to Dulness, or in the before-mention'd Manuscript; which if I remember right contain'd his rhapsodic Scrape on himself, since published January 22; an unintitled Performance, like the Ravings of some old lunatic'd Ware-house composed of many Remnants subscribed Epidaurus; an Epistle replete with Buckskin, Dulness, the Fatal Sisters, Tartarian Choir, Phlegethon's flamy Wave, Great Jove, cum multis aliis; an Epigram or two, and Toby's Answer in Distics as before; together with the Celebration of the Dog Merritt's Head; which if treated heroi-comically naturel, had the Lord been as great a Proficient in the Hibernian Howl of Dogs, as he seems to be in the Hibernian.

IMPARTIALITY exemplified

ONE of the first Peers of England waited, at his Chamber, upon Sir Matthew Hale, Chief Baron of the Exchequer; and, the usual compliments being over, began to inform him,——'That he was then unhappily engaged in a Law-suit, which was soon 'to come on, and to be tried before him, and 'that he might the better understand it, before 'it came into Court, was the reason of his 'present visit.—Upon which the Judge immediately interrupted him and said,——'You 'don't deal fairly, in thus coming here to my 'Chamber, in a private way, in order to treat 'with me about such affairs: For, added he, 'it is not my way ever to receive any Informations of any causes whatever, but in open 'court, where both parties are, and have an 'equal right to be heard alike'—Whereupon his Grace, (for he was a Duke) meeting with so unexpected a repulse, went off directly in a huff, and posted away to St. James's, to complain of it to the King, (Charles II.) as of a rudeness, that was not to be [illegible]d by [illegible] high a personage.—But the King [illegible], 'content, my Lord Duke, and thankful [illegible] 'Judge used you no worse. For I verily be'lieve, said his Majesty, that he would have 'used me no better, had I gone to solicit him 'in any of my own causes.'

Oh Integrity! how irresistably dost thou plead in every breast! And though often gagged and smothered, yet in the event, in time or eternity, art not to be silenced, but will speak, and spare not.——Reader, art thou a Minister of Justice? Then go and do as this upright Judge did. And let no frowns of the creature, however exalted, no ties of blood, however endearing, no earthly considerations, however powerful, prevail on thee to counteract that all speaking voice of the DEITY within thee.

Extract of a letter from Cephalonia, (a considerable island of Greece, belonging to the Venetians) dated October 18.

"On the 31st of May last we had a most furious hurricane here accompanied with hail, as large as nuts, which seemed to threaten the total destruction of the island. All the steeples of the churches were blown down, the largest olive trees, as well as all other sorts of trees, torn up by the roots; country houses and Vineyards, &c. carried away, and the roofs were blown about in the air like the leaves of trees. The sea, which is always calm in the port of Argostoli, swelled at this time to such a degree that the waves ran over the highest mountains [illegible] as they began to overflow the town, our terror was inexpressible. We all thought ourselves on the brink of perishing, without any possibility of succour. Four oxen, usually employed in labour, and which were then grazing in the plains of Lixuri about two miles from the sea, were washed away, and we were afterwards greatly surprised to find them on the shore at Argostoli, one of whom still alive, the three others dead. The fatal hurricane continued 25 minutes, if it had lasted a few minutes longer, from the effects we have experienced, the whole island would have been annihilated.

"On the 24th of July we felt a violent shock of the earth, which lasted three minutes, and was followed the same day by three other slight shocks. The Land has continued in motion for fifty days and we still often feel pretty considerable shocks. Many houses have been thrown down, and the rest nearly all damaged; so that we are obliged to lie in the open fields. The shocks have been general throughout the island, as well in the plains as the mountains; and about 20 persons have perished."

EDINBURGH, Nov. 19.

We hear from Wigton in Galloway, that the Neptune of Whitehaven from James's River, Virginia, homeward bound, upon Monday last the 17th current, about Sun rising, struck on a Sand bank at the Mouth of Wigton Bay, and broke her Rudder. She fortunately got off again, but was so ungovernable for want of her Rudder, that she soon struck on Baldinsands, and drove above two Miles up the Bay upon the Sands, where she now sits fast. All her Hands are safe, and her cargo amounting to 550 Hogsheads Tobacco, Skins, &c. will be saved, and the Ship got off when lightened.

[illegible]e LET [illegible] EN[illegible]RED on immediately,

THE HOUSES, LAND, &c. late in the Possession of Mr. John Hood, conveniently situated on the South Side of River in Prince George County. It need be mentioned what superior Advantage Place possesses, over most others on the above ned River, for carrying on Trade, having convenient House for that Purpose, spacious [illegible]rehouses, Cellars, an exceeding good Landing, [illegible]d commanding an extensive back Country, producing large Quantities of Grain, Pork, &c. The Tobacco Warehouses, and the established Ferry, at the above Place, may likewise be rented, and the [illegible]ms may be known by applying to THEODORICK BLAND, jun. in Blandford.

THE Subscriber intending to leave the Colony in a short Time, proposes to sell as follows: Two Leases of Tenements in Fredericksburg on the Main Street, one of which rents at Twelve Pounds, the other he uses as a Shop, and would rent for as much; one Quarter of an Acre Lot opposite to Mr. Charles Washington's, on which are no considerable Improvements, rents for Four Pounds; also sundry Materials for carrying on the Saddlery Business too tedious to mention. A Tract of Land, by Estimation, One Hundred Acres, within Half a Mile of the Town of Falmouth in King George County, where the Subscriber now lives, on which are some valuable Buildings, plenty of Wood on the Land, very good Water, and an exce[illegible]ng beautiful Situation; on the same Tract is a Tan Yard just finished, containing Twenty Vatts, well water'd by Springs: Another Tract of Land within a Mile and a Half of the above, containing One Hundred and Fifty Acres, wherein the Subscriber has a Plantation in good Order for Grain, with sundry Improvements on the same, sufficient for the Reception of six Hands, under a good Fence, and on which a Piece of good Meadow may be made, adjoining the River Rappahannock; also a good Convenience for Mills, the River being easily commanded at that Spot; a complete Saw Mill, just finish'd by the well-known Mr. Samuel Bond, of Philadelphia, situated on Rock Run in Fauquier County, within Fifteen Miles of Falmouth, and a good Road, to which belongs the Pine Timber of One Thousand Acres of Land, equal in Quality to any in the Colony, and convenient to the said Mill; One other Tract of uncultivated Land, containing between Four and Five Hundred Acres, well timber'd and water'd, on Summer Duck Run, within a Mile and a Half of the Mill, to be sold with the Mill or separately, as may best suit the Purchaser.

The Subscriber has some very good Pine Plank to dispose of, on reasonable Terms, at the Saw Mill and at Falmouth. He likewise proposes to sell some of his houshold Furniture. And begs those who are indebted to him (particularly such as have owed for Years) will pay off their Accounts without further Trouble, which will enable him to Discharge Debts due to others. RICHARD LEWIS.

N. B. As the Lands, &c. lay distinct from each other, the Terms may be known by applying to the Subscriber in Fredericksburg, or at his House in King George County. R. L.

RICHMOND County, February 24, 1767.

HAVING had a Still-house built close by my Dwelling-house, but down in a Gully much out of Sight for the Conveniency of a Spring, now near two Years; and having a large new Copper Still that might work One Hundred and Twenty Gallons or better, with a large Cock at the bottom of it, a fine Pewter Crane Nossel rising from the Top of the Cap of the Still, with a Loop of Pewter upon the Crane to lift it occasionally from the Still; and with it a fine noble Worm well stationed with Pewter from Top to Bottom in many Parts of the spiral Curve of the Worm, fix'd up in the Still-House for about fourteen or fifteen Months. I have this Day discovered by mere Accident, that the said Still and Worm has been carried off by some Persons, but without its Tub, as the Staves thereof are found lying about in the Swamp. I hereby advertise the Sum of TWENTY POUNDS Currency as a Reward to any one or more to discover by whom the said Theft has been committed, provided the Thief or Thieves shall be convicted when brought to Justice. The Time when this Still was stolen cannot be certainly pointed out; because as Stilling is a Work only upon Hand perhaps once in a Year, this House can only in its useless Times have been looked into by Accident. There is a Report that one George Keele, a Convict, who some Years ago served his Time with me, and has since his Freedom lived up in Frederick, Fauquier, Culpeper or the other back Counties thereto adjacent, as a Waggoner or Carter. This Keele has been known to have come into this Neighbourhood twice or oftner within these few Months, and about ten Days or a Fortnight ago, came down with a Cart in the Night, and called at a Weaver's House just by Dickinson's Mill in this County for Quarters, but finding the Weaver knew him, did not lodge there, but drove on; from whence it is presumable the Business of carrying off this Still had been projected in some of his former Trips into this Neighbourhood; and as he was then seen frequently lurking about with one Robert Smith, whom I prosecuted some General Courts ago, for Thefts committed in my Out-Houses, it is not unlikely but this Villainy must have been carried on by them; two Horses having been missing out of this Neighbourhood in one of Keele's Trips before this. Note, it is about a Fortnight ago or a little more, that some of my Family had Occasion to go into the Still-House, and then they think the Still and all its Appurtenances were there. Now the Time when Keele came last down was the 12th of the Month and he returned the 13th early with his Cart covered. The Still was some Years ago sent me from London at about Forty Pound Sterling Price, quite new and never used when carried away. I have offered a large Reward, hoping that the People of this Country will use some Diligence to detect such a Species of Villainy, which may sooner or later prove the entire Destruction of many Families in this Colony, as they are not so situated to crowd every Thing under their own Roofs. How easy is it (since Carts may be made use of) thus to perpetrate a Robbery upon every Out-House in the Country? And Negroes no Doubt may be hired as well as mine for Liquor to assist in the most daring Attempts. The Weight of this Still was so very great, that it employ'd five or six of my best Hands to carry it down the Hill; and as it appears by some Tracks, the Cart brought over some of my Fields, was lodged at the Top of the Hill; some greater Assistance than common must have been used to get it into the Cart, and if the Roads were seen, it would be found to be one prodigious Night's Work. I have been in this Advertisement particular, to let others see what a Situation they may be in, who have Slaves capable of being thus corrupted by Liquors. I have some Notion that LC or my Name at length was stampt or dotted with a punch upon the Copper or the Cap of the Still.

LANDON CARTER.

February 28th, 1767. This very Day I have certain Intelligence sent to me, that one Simon Rice on Friday the 13th of this Month, as before mentioned, met the said Keele in his red Coat, with red Gambadoes on, driving a Cart with three Horses in it, covered over with a red Rug, just by Dickinson's Mill, when it was snowing very fast, and as he passed him, the Wind blowing off a Part of the Rug, discovered a Worm and Cap of a Still. Therefore it is to be hoped that wherever this Advertisement shall reach, if the said Keele should be in those Parts, some well disposed Persons will use their Endeavour to have him immediately apprehended. He is a tall lusty Fellow, with the Plowman's lounging forward Gait, and has as much of the drap Gallows in his Face as is common to be seen in noted Villains. It is reported he carries on a thievish Traffick from Virginia into the upper Parts of Maryland, and I shall be as willing to pay the Reward to any Person in that Province intitled to receive it on the before mentioned Terms, as I should be if this Thief is apprehended in this Colony.

CHARLES CITY, February 26, 1767.

NEAR two Years ago, in which Time I might, with Health, have earned Money to pay all my Debts, I advertised my Willingness to deliver up, upon Oath, all I then had, if my Creditors would have accepted it, and have given me Liberty of working for more, to have paid the remaining Balance; but instead of that, I have been sued and imprisoned, from Time to Time, and at all Times, ever since, which has starved, cripp'ed and forever disabled me for carrying on any Work at all hereafter.

I might now bid them adieu any Day I please, and leave them to seek their Money where they cannot find it; but to act a Part that all the World, I hope, will allow to be fair and honest in my present Circumstances, I make my Creditors the following Offer, which is all in my Power, and the last I will ever make:

I will give them Bond and Security for the Payment of three Hundred Pounds at the end of five Years, provided they will all join in enabling me to recover by Suit two Hundred more in the Hands of a Gentleman in King George, on Account of the Liquors and other Goods (about which such a Noise has been made) that I ever bought at any Store or Sale (except Cattle that died) all which I can fully prove he artfully and unjustly withholds from me; and recovered and applied the same way, will, with the other £.300, about pay all my just Debts.

My Creditors are desired to signify their Pleasure to my Nephew John Whitfield, or whoever else may attend at Mr. James Southall's in Williamsburg, for that Purpose, about the 25th of next April General Court.

RICHARD WHITFIELD.

THERE is in Bermuda Hundred Warehouse in Chesterfield County, one Hogshead of Tobacco, marked RTE, No. 24—Gross 1250, Nett 1133,—Tare 117.—The said Hogshead of Tobacco has been in the said Warehouse above three Years.

JOHN KNIBB,
THOMAS STRATTON.

ON the 13th of February, run away from the Subscriber, a Negro Boy named MOSES. He had on an old Claret coloured Coat, with a brown Cape and Cuffs, a brown Waistcoat, Cotton Breeches, Plaid hose, and a Jocky Cap. He carried away with him, a black horse about four Feet five Inches high, a Bridle and Saddle, a Male Pillion, a Portmanteau, and 3 Pair of old Breeches in it. Whoever contrives me the said Boy to Aylett's Warehouses, shall have a Reward of FORTY SHILLINGS.

JOHN AYLETT.

LONDON, November 22.

THURSDAY Night a Servant Girl in this City went into an Office in Change-Alley, to enquire about the Success of a Share she had purchased in a Lottery Ticket; when being told it was that Day come up a Blank, she was so much afflicted, that she had nearly fainted. An elderly Lady, pitying her Distress, made her a Present of a Guinea, to make up her Loss, which was a Sixteenth; but the Gentlewoman was no sooner gone, than the Girl immediately laid out the Money in buying another Share, in Hopes of better Fortune.

Thursday a Person in Guildhall, attended the drawing of the Lottery, was persuaded by a Friend to buy a Ticket, when the Instant of his Purchase it was drawn a Prize of 100l.

The following is an Account of a very extraordinary Personage.

NEAR Llanfelin, in Denbighshire, lives Jane Morgan, whose Memory yet serves her to give an Account of seven Reigns since she was born 130 Years ago. She walks upright without a Stick, her Teeth are almost perfect, and she can see well without Spectacles; but her Organs of hearing are so corroborated by Age, that no Stench can invade them with the least Prejudice. She has been reduced to the most unheard of Shifts for Food, and by the Keenness of her Stomach she may be thought now to be in the Meridian of her Age, for of whatsoever Species Cattle, Horses, &c. die, she will eat them, and all Carrion, in whatever State she findsit, are alike to her Stomach. If any will bestow Corn upon her, she will carry two Bushels to the Mill, which is nothing to what she has done formerly. Some People of Ninety say, their Fathers have told them she was a very tall Woman, and in a House out of which she had seen Coffined 11 Heirs, her Height was taken above 100 Years ago, but last Year coming to the same Place she was found to want near 18 Inches of that Measure, and is now only four feet four Inches high. She is as merry as a Girl of fifteen, and will sing from Morning to Night, &c.

N. B. She was married forty two Years before she had any Children, and in her 66th Year had a Daughter; and says her Mother was six Feet high, and before she died shrunk to three feet six Inches.

What sort of Menstruum has her Stomach, since no Stench offends her?

How comes the whole Contexture of her Body with such Consent of Parts, to be climb'd?

And from the Bones must be contracted; how come we to find Bones long buried, of the same Length as when first interred?

HARTFORD, (in Connecticut) January 26.

Last Saturday died in this Town, Mrs. Ruth Spencer, aged 98 Years; her Sight was so remarkably good, that she could see to read the smallest Print without Spectacles, till within a few Days of her Death.

PROVIDENCE, January 10.

On the Evening of the 8th Instant was married, Mr. John Taylor of Johnston, to Mrs. Anne Kelton of this Town. This venerable Pair, whose Ages amount to 161 Years, (i. e. 89 by 72) promises little Hopes of Success in the more common Effects of the matrimonial State.

FREDERICKSBURG, January 28, 1767.

I INTEND to GREAT-BRITAIN soon.
